GREENEVILLE NEWS

Funeral of Mrs. Joseph Carter.

The funeral of Lydia Hamel, wife of Joseph Carter, was held from her late home, No. 14 Durley street, on Tuesday morning, with services in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. H. Fitzmaurice officiated. There were handsome floral forms. Many relatives and friends were present, including a number from out of town. Selections were rendered by the choir. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, where a committal service was read by Father Fitzmaurice. Friends acted as bearers.

Birthday Surprise Party.

In observation of his eighteenth birthday Leroy Larkin was given a pleasant surprise party by about 15 young friends at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Larkin, No. 33 Central avenue, Wednesday evening. Games and music were enjoyed and refreshments were served. In behalf of those present, Miss Gladys Miner of Norwich Town presented the host a handsome gold watch fob. The evening was a delightful one for all present.

NORWICH TOWN

Successful Food Sale at Methodist Parsonage—Wells Running Over—Spring Improvements.

A successful food sale was held on Wednesday afternoon in the parsonage of the First Methodist church. Attractive cakes, pies, loaves of bread and biscuits were displayed on a prettily decorated table, at which the president of the Dorcas missionary society, Mrs. J. O. Dodge, presided, having able assistants. A good sum of money was realized toward the purchase of new rugs for the church vestry.

Wells Overflowing.

Wells running over with water are a contrast to a year ago when reports kept coming from different parts of the town of no water in wells.

Local Miscellany.

E. L. Tinkham of Hanover has returned after passing a few days with friends here.

Miss Gertrude Coombs of Martha's Vineyard is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rose of Wauwacuss Hill.

Henry Rogers of East Lyme has been making a visit at the home of William Parkinson on Huntington avenue.

Joseph Ashwell is moving from Williams street to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Way, on Huntington avenue.

Mrs. Stewart Greenman and Mrs. Frank Ray of the Canterbury turnpike were recent guests of friends in Hanover.

Mrs. Charles Abell of East Town street will spend today (Thursday) in Ivoryton, the guest of Mrs. Oscar F. Knowles.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester E. Snow of West Town street returned Tuesday from a visit in Springfield, Mass., with Mr. Snow's brother.

Mrs. Emma Snow and daughter, Mrs. Applegate of Cranbury, N. J., are visiting Mrs. Snow's son, Chester K. Snow of West Town street.

Mrs. Herbert Carden, her son Francis and little daughter May of Hartford have returned after a visit with Mrs. Carden's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Shahan.

Many improvements are being made in houses about town this spring, porches built, modern improvements added, besides shingling and painting. The store on West Town street, recently burned out, is being put into shape again.

Edward Bushnell of the Old Canterbury turnpike was in Williamstown early in the week, the guest of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, who are soon to move to Hartford, as Mr. Thompson is employed in that city.

New Britain.—Rev. John T. Winters of St. Mary's church has gone to Hot Springs, Va.

Gave Verdict of $368.75 for Plaintiff

Jury Decides New London Barber Should Recover for Fire Loss—Insurance Company Wants Verdict Set Aside—Claims It Excessive and Against Evidence.

When the common pleas court came in here on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, the arguments in the case of Peter Loscano vs. the City of New York, the insurance company were concluded, and Judge Walter charged the jury, which retired to consider the case at 10:45 o'clock.

This time they returned with a verdict for $368.75 for Loscano, who is suing the insurance company for the loss of his first barber shop in New London. He sued for $500.

The verdict of $368.75 was accepted by the court and ordered recorded. The jury was excused until 2 o'clock.

Attorneys for the insurance company, Robinson & Benson, then presented a motion to have the verdict set aside on the grounds that it was against the evidence and excessive. The motion was argued and the judge took the papers.

While the jury was out on the Loscano case, Attorney Thresher, who represented the plaintiffs in the case of Albert Dennison and sister vs. Groton and Stonington Street Railway company, asked that the case be transferred from the jury to the court. The jury was excused until Friday morning at 10 o'clock, when it will come in for the trial of the case of Ambrose B. Scoville vs. Town of Columbia. This is a suit over some sheep killed by dogs, Mr. Scoville suing the town to recover the value of the sheep.

At the afternoon session of the court, Dennison and sister vs. Groton and Stonington street railway was taken up. This is a suit over a maple shade tree in Mystic, which Mr. Dennison, who is a lawyer, claims the railway company removed. He seeks $150 for the tree, which he claims was on his land, but near the trolley tracks. Mr. Dennison was the first witness.

The claim of the trolley company is that the tree was on the highway and that the manager of the road had a right to remove it, that it had no value except for firewood, and that there was a necessity for cutting down the tree. Judge Comstock appears for the road and Attorney Thresher for Dennison and his sister.

The case was uncompleted when court adjourned at 4:40 o'clock. It will be resumed again at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning.

IN HONOR OF CENTRAL VERMONT PRESIDENT

Wheels Will Stop Today for Five Minutes—Memorial Services at New London and Montreal.

Wheels will cease to move on the Central Vermont railroad at 11:30 this morning and will remain still until 11:35 in respect to the memory of President Charles M. Hayes, the road will stop at 11:30 and remain standing until 11:35 Thursday morning.

At 11:15 an engine and coach will take a party at union station and go to Long wharf where fitting memorial services to the memory of the president will be held. From 11:30 to 11:35, it is planned that each person shall pray in his own tongue and own faith for the families of the bereaved.

The service for burial at sea will be especially rearranged and will be read by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' church. During the service flowers will be strewn upon the water as upon the grave. All denominations will unite in the services at the wharf, for which the following order has been arranged:

Hymn, Safe Home, Safe Home in Port, prayer, Rev. J. Romen Danforth, pastor of First Church of Christ; eulogy, Rev. C. Seymour Bullock, pastor of All Souls' church; hymn, Nearer, My God, to Thee; committal service, Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' church; benediction, Rev. Thomas H. Tiernan, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church.

INTEREST INCREASES AT COLCHESTER.

Rev. W. B. Cornish Preaching Interesting Sermons at Methodist Church.

The second service of the Methodist Episcopal church at Colchester, under the pastorate of Rev. W. B. Cornish, last Sunday evening was marked by an increase in the attendance over the service of the preceding Sunday. Mr. Cornish's sermon was listened to with a great deal of interest and it is expected that many more will be present next Sunday evening. The sermon at that time will be on the subject "The Consecrated Life." Mr. Cornish's preaching is quiet and conversational and is wholly free from sensationalism and "modernism." He believes that the truths of the Gospel are permanent and he preaches them forcefully and earnestly.

MURDERERS SEEK PARDONS.

Spike Murphy and Dorsey Appeal to Governor.

Governor Pothier, with the senate committee on pardons, Tuesday considered petitions, seeking the pardon of Dennis C. Murphy, alias Spike Murphy, formerly of Norwich, and Allen W. Dorsey, who are serving life sentences for murder.

Both of these men have been inmates of the state prison for upward of 21 years, the crimes of which they were found guilty having been of a nature that startled the communities in which they occurred.

Murphy was convicted of killing Waterman Irons of Providence, and Dorsey is serving sentence for the death of Benjamin Burton.

Elks Improving Home Property. At the Elks' home on Main street, work is under way in regading the lawn in front of and around the building, preparatory to seeding down. New asphalt walks are also to be laid, and the lawn will be beautified with shrubs and ornamental plants.

Bristol.—The fishing season on Congamond lake opens for all kinds of fish on Memorial day, May 27, except for bass, the open season for which begins on June 28.

LESSONS FROM THE TITANIC DISASTER

Rev. C. H. Ricketts Speaks Impressively at Shop Meeting at McCrum-Howells.

Rev. C. H. Ricketts of Greenville Congregational church spoke on Wednesday at noon at the shop talk at the McCrum-Howells company in the series under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. His topic was The Shadow of Death, under which he considered the lessons to be drawn from the Titanic disaster.

You all know what is on my mind and on my heart when I speak of the shadow of death. You know what has made the men and women of two continents pause in their pursuits, stand in little groups on street corners and elsewhere scanning the latest editions of the public press, and debating with bated breath and blanched cheek the most exciting toll that the sea at any one time ever made upon the living. It is no extravagant figure of speech to say that the two hemispheres have felt this shadow of death. The chill atmosphere of that iceberg has touched the whole civilized world with sorrow.

Disaster Brings Men Together

There is nothing like appalling disaster to bring out the common oneness of the human family. Of the Newfoundland banks in that awful stretch of sea, long known as the ocean graveyard, two miles beneath the surface, millionaire and immigrant lie side by side in their watery grave. In the series under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. His topic was The Shadow of Death, under which he considered the lessons to be drawn from the Titanic disaster.

I repeat the shadow of some great calamity falls upon all, and nothing else brings us back so tenderly to our common human oneness. Can politics do it? Last week I went to the Republican state convention at New Haven and it seemed to me that the business was conducted in a rather perfunctory manner. Men all around me in undertones were discussing different phases of the catastrophe deeper by far than the important question of presidential succession was the consciousness of this great human shadow.

Human Lives of First Importance

Human lives are of more importance than the filled coffers of rival steamship lines; speed in crossing the ocean must be made subordinate to safety; a matter that must be fixed by international regulation. The country is repeating to wise words of Andrew Carnegie: "What was the Titanic doing on among the ice when she had the whole Atlantic south open and free." Running through the pathway of icebergs at 23 knots an hour, in a moonless night, when warned of the danger, is an offense against humanity that ought not to be easily condoned. Perhaps an awful calamity like this was necessary to make us see that something besides floating palaces of great size and speed will better meet the demands of ocean travel.

Heroism Yet Alive

One struggling ray of light, clear as the noodday, comes up from that deep sepulchre two miles beneath the surface, and that ray of light is heroism. There does not seem to have been any scene of wild disorder in which men forgot their manhood, trampling on helpless women and children in a wild scramble for safety. Men forgot their millions and calmly, in the face of death, did what they could to secure the safety of the helpless far beneath them in the social scale. America will not soon forget her noble dead, and these men going down to their watery grave with neither cringing whine or craven fear will be an object lesson which the rising generation can never forget. A thousand times better than the inheritance of vast wealth will be the ability of many a young man and woman to say: "My husband, my father, my brother went down with the Titanic, but he was not a coward." Things like these increase our faith in, and respect for, humanity. Amid the somber messages that came from this ocean graveyard there was flashed this gleam of light: "Practically every woman saved." And of course that meant that the vast majority of those who are now entombed in that deep and dark sepulcher of the sea were men. Let us thank God that, according to all accounts there was but one conspicuous coward on the ill-fated steamer, and he was not a citizen of this country. These men by their sacrificial death will have a greater influence in increasing our faith in humanity than they could by living.

Violinist Moves Men

At the conclusion of the earnest and impressive talk Raymond H. Eldred played the hymn, Nearer My God to Thee, on the violin, deeply affecting his hearers by his beautiful rendering of the hymn.

TAFTVILLE

Death of Miss Julia B. Corcoran.

Miss Julia B. Corcoran passed away at her home on Norwich avenue, Taftville, about noon Wednesday at the age of 48. She had been sick about a week with pneumonia, and was the daughter of William and Bessie Corcoran. Both of her parents are dead. She was born in Ireland but had lived for a number of years in Taftville. Miss Corcoran is survived by a brother, Maurice, and a sister Annie, both of Taftville. She had many friends in the village who will sincerely regret to learn of her death.
